TIDINGS

Volume 4, Issue 05

Sep/Oct 2003

From the President's Pen...

Hope everyone survived the emotional tangles of getting the children back to school. It is hard to believe that summer is over. Seems like it was only yesterday we were planning the spring show at the Pavilion. Now it is time to get moving with OTP for November. Yes, OTP has been moved to the 1st of November to accommodate some renovations currently planned for the Church in September-October. We held the Brenda McCall Decorative Plate class on the 13 of September on my porch. What a great time it was for all. Thank you Brenda and Mary for all your hard work.

STOP by the Major Hillard Library in Deep Creek and take a look at TBG's Basket From Many Countries display. Our thanks to Meredith Macdonald for her dedicated efforts to our library display program. Once again she has presented a new exciting view of our basket world.

Our thanks to Mary Normand for another outstanding broom class. Mary never seems to teach the same broom twice. She assured me after this class that she learns more with each class than her students. I don't think so.

The August Pool Party was a truly creative effort. Billie quickly changed the party from the pool to the garage/tent to protect us from the rather massive rainstorm that morning. As always, she was the perfect hostess whose table held some of the most delicious salads ever tasted. Check out the recipes on our website. Artist and teacher, Judith Saunders conducted an outstanding workshop on the art of bias weave. Thanks go to her for sharing her many talents with our members. Maybe, if we ask nicely, she will let us schedule a rerun for next spring.

There are so many people to thank for their contributions to our guild. Our board members have devoted many hours to planning and conducting meetings, work-and special events. I could not have found a more supportive staff in terms of the board and general members that volunteer their time. Our volunteers directed by Alice Wyvill have performed a multitude of tasks such as preparing kits and setting up classrooms. Rhonda Jones has spent many hours coordinating OTPs and festival events. Sam Winters gave a major portion of her last two years ensuring the success of GW 2002 and 2003. Where would we be without our volunteers? I'm sure I have left someone out but it is not because your efforts are not appreciated. Mark it simply as a senior moment.

The Board cannot do the job alone. We need the help of our members. We are still in need of members to work the Newport News Fall Festival. Alice will soon be scouting for volunteers for the 2004 schedule. Cindy will be knocking on doors for assistance with GW 2004. If you are hesitating because of lack of experience, let me assure that the work is all OJT (on the job training) and is rewarding and fun. If you have never CUT KITS and learned to measure reed, this is your opportunity.

▪ Membership News

▪ Hello basketmates! I hope everyone is had a fun and restful summer with lots of weaving. We are currently up

▪ to 86 members at of last count. I'm not sure what went on at the last Open to the Public class but it must have ▪ been exciting because afterwards we had ten new people join our ranks. A hearty welcome to all!

▪ As you know it is time again to start getting your renewals in. The new year starts October 1st. I'm personally

▪ expecting a visit from the Stork (what a cruel myth that really is for women!) around Oct 7th. So, anyone who ▪ wants to send their renewal of $20.00 in early is highly encouraged to do so. I will be at the Sept. meeting and

▪ can take checks then. That actually might be my last public appearance until the Christmas party so I'm trying

▪ to get as much done as possible.

▪ Happy Weaving :)

Java Art

Laskin Road--across from Hilltop, east of First Colonial, on the feeder road between Taylor Hardware and the Bowling Alley.
417-8700

There is going to be a new art gallery/coffee shop opening on Laskin Road in Virginia Beach. They are also going to carry craft supplies in the studio area including a limited amount of basket materials, i.e. reed, d handles, basic tools and some kits. Although I'm sure the prices will be more than the discount prices offered by the mail order suppliers there is no minimum order. This will be particularly good for the new weavers who don't want to buy a ton of stuff. If we give them our support then hopefully in the future they can offer more. Think how nice it would be to have a local source for materials.

So check them out. They will be opening after the 16th of Sept and are offering the work of local artists in the gallery. Billie Volunteers Needed!!

The 2004 Calendar is just about ready and we are in need of volunteers for meetings and classes. What do you have to do? For most meetings you will be setting up chairs, cutting kits, or just providing refreshments and making sure everything runs smoothly. Please do not worry if you have never cut a kit before, we can help you out with kits or whatever else is needed. Can you help us out? Please give Alice Wyvill a call 874-7399 or email alwyvill@erols.com and let her know you are willing to help.

And a BIG THANK YOU to all the volunteers we have had over the past year. What a great group of people we have in the guild! You are the best!

TBG's International Baskets display at the Major Hillard Library in Deep Creek.. None of the baskets were woven by guild members but show baskets from many, many countries

Thanks Meredith Macdonald for all your hard work on our displays.

FYI: About Guilders WeaveHistory and more.....

About Registration and Class Assignments: Perhaps you are concerned that those who live in Tidewater and nearby are “getting a break”, and those living further away are being treated unfairly because it takes a couple of days longer for your registration to reach us. Not so! Just to put your mind at ease, here’s how all those registrations are handled.

All envelopes are separated by postmark. In other words, all those postmarked on the first allowable day are put into a pile, all those postmarked on the next day are put into a pile, all those on the next day, etc. etc.

Those on the first postmark day are all shaken up together, and from the pile an envelope is drawn at random. This is #1. The name is listed, their choices recorded, and they are assigned their first choices for classes. Then another envelope is selected randomly from that same pile. This will be #2; the name and choices are recorded, the first choices assigned. Following this procedure, all the registrants for the first postmark day are recorded and assigned into classes. Then on to the next postmark day. Shake up the pile, randomly select an envelope, and proceed as above.

As classes fill up, move on to the second, third, or whatever choices. Work through all the registrants this way.

If more than 12 people have picked the same class as their first choice and they have all been postmarked the same day, then you simply have to draw names for that particular class. Those that aren’t drawn are put into their next choice, etc.

So, see, your postmark counts! And it doesn’t matter whether you live in New York or Virginia; a postmark date is a postmark date.

Maybe you can now see why it is important to list as many choices as you can. If your first listed choices fill up before we get your envelope drawn, we can move you on to your next choice, etc. But if you only have a couple of choices listed, and they are filled by the time we get to your name, then you are out of luck. (Or we have to try to chase you down to get another choice from you.) And, there’s also another reason: say you get your first choices assigned, but then that teacher decides she can’t come teach, since none of her other classes made up and it isn’t lucrative to come teach just that one class. Then that leaves you in the lurch without a class assignment unless you have listed another choice we can drop you into.

Once you register, you are responsible for your class fees. No changing your mind about it at that point. Why? The teacher has been sent your name among her list of students and- pay attention, now - she is preparing the materials for the people and numbers she has been told are in her class. So don’t list a class you don’t want or can’t take! If you find you must miss because of illness or whatever reason, then it is up to the teacher to decide whether she will give you a “kit” (pattern and materials), elect to simply refund your class fee, or handle it whatever way she usually handles such situations. You can contact the teacher after the event to sort it out!

About the Classes-Costs and Time: Ever noticed that the same class taught at one convention is a different price from the same class taught elsewhere? Why is that?

Actually, each teacher sets the price, the skill level, and the time requirements for her particular classes, and then gives us that information. The price for a class is based on the expenses involved in that teacher’s producing the class. The teacher must ask: Am I getting paid a set fee for teaching, or do I have to set the class cost to cover my teaching fee? How much teaching time is involved? What will the materials cost? How much will my travel expenses be? Be aware that each convention is set up differently. Some pay the teacher a set fee per person, some a set fee per class, some neither. All these things must be considered by the instructor to arrive at the class cost. The cost for the class is set at the amount needed to recover the expenses and collect a fee commensurable with her effort. The variation in class costs represents variables in all the considerations above.

Ever wonder why the basket takes longer to finish (or, is finished earlier) than the stated class time? Now, that I can’t tell you, since the teacher sets the time requirements. Some teachers will comment that they expect students to complete only so much in class, then, for example, rim the basket later. This is something most weavers should already know how to do, and therefore not need the teachers help for that step. Some will expect that everything be completed within the time frame they dictate. It is usually an educated guess anyway, since some folks weave faster than others. As you well know, the very same basket can take two weavers different times to complete.

More thoughts next time... Sam Winters, GW Chair 2002, 2003
